

Gentlemen,
In all due respect I object to your proposed concept of requiring me to record and retain my on air broadcasts.

I live by an ethical code and I will not allow myself nor my employees to cross the line with indecent material on the airwaves of my radio station.

I have been involved with this station since 1979 and I believe I can safely say that the indecency line has never been crossed. It is not an option, day or night.

I, like most community broadcasters, take seriously my responsibility to my city of license and my listeners, young and old alike.

I don't wish to sound like a bleeding heart but I have enough to do, and enough expense, without performing a task that is totally uncalled for.

I believe the FCC already has avenues to punish broadcasters that violate the public sense of decency. Inforce the rules and regulations already in place and don't punish the rest of us for the acts of a few.

Sincerely,

James R. Lambley
